Rome, Feb. 17.—The Latin text of the Papal Encyclical letter against divorce fills twelve columns of the Os-servatore Romano. It argues in favor of the removal of the rite of marriage from all civil jurisdiction whatsoever. It traces the history of marriage from Patriarchal to the Catholic times, and declares that Christ was elevated to sac-rament, which only His church can administer. Attempts are made under various guises by the modern spirit of irreligion to rob the church of her right either to bind or loose the marriage tie, which must be resisted by the whole Catholic world. His Holiness indicates the conditions whereunder a separation of the husband and wife may be sanc-tioned by the church, and concludes with an exhortation to the Universal the Sherman Boom. RICHMOND, Feb. 16 .- The following correspondence explains itself:

"RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 31, 1880.—Hon.
John Sherman.—Dear Sir: The undersigned, Republican representatives in the General Assembly of Virginia, desire to extend to you their sincere con-gratulations over the almost universal sentiment am n; the Republicans of this State in f. vo of your nomination as President o the United States. All of us are colored representatives, and, relying upon our many public virtues in defence of cur race, have assured our people that in the event of your election to the high office of Chief Mag-istrate of this nation that they will find you their friend, ever ready to recognize their claims, to rightfully defend their interests. It is needless to say to you that the colored people love the Republican party. They have faithfully supported it under the most trying circumstances in the past, and it is our determination to do likewise in the future. We feel, however, that our race has been neglected of late years by the Republican leaders of the country, but we place our confidence in you and have hope for the future. We have determined to give you our most cordial and active support, and therefore beg to subscribe ourselves sincerely your friends, D M Norton, State Senator; R G L Paige, N Lewis, S Dungee, Geo N Cole, Archer Scott, Johnson Collins, H D Smith and Littleton Owens, members of the House of Delegates."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. 1880.—Hon. D. M. Norton, R. G. L. Paige, N. Lewis, and other Republican Representa-tives in the General Assembly, Richmond, Va.—Gentlemen: I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 31st ult, conveying to me the kind-ly sentiments of the colored representatives in the General Assembly of Virginia; the assurance of which gives me sincere pleasure. The situation in which you are now placed, not only as voters and equal citizens, but as part of the lawmakers of the ancient Commonwealth of Virginia, where your race was for a long time held in slavery, is one of peculiar interest and importance. You are now invested with all the rights held by any other citizen of Virginia, and you should and no doubt do feel the full responsibilities of your position. You may rest assured that as far as my limited influence goes I will seek to sustain you in the enjoy-ment of full civil and political liberty and equality.—The principles upon which our government is founded were never more eloquently expressed than by the great men of Virginia during the revolutionary struggle, and the rights you enjoy are but the logical sequence of these principles. I hope and believe that, while securely enjoying these blessings, you will remember that they are only to be preserved by a careful regard for the equal rights of others and by contributing your full share to the education, development and prog-ress of all. The influence of habits and customs of generations cannot be over come in a day, but the advance of public opinion in the right direction has been so marked since the emancipation of your race, that we may boast that in a brief period the distiction tween the races in all questions of civil and political rights will be ignored as fully as the distinction between religious sects and of nationalities has been. All are alike citizens of a common country, equally entitled to its privileges, and equally bound to obey the laws and usages. "Very truly yours, JOHN SHERMAN." It is stated, in addition, that of the four remaining colored members, who did not sign the above letter, two are not yet committed to any one. The third is not friendly to Sherman, and the fourth declined to sign, but says he will do more for Sherman than will Correspondence of the News.

WAKE FORREST, Feb. 14—When one has been living in anticipation for so long a time for some bright prospects to be realized and they come and are to be realized and they come and are realized to the fullest extent, with all their pleasures and sweets, who can but regret their passage. Yesterday was a day long looked for by many a schoolboy and bright-eyed maiden. Many and ample preparations had been made for the anniversary which came off last evening and night.

It was known far and wide that it was to be a grand time, and had been spoken of with the brightest hopes in all the editorials. The morning was quite favorable to pleasant time and many visitors ar rived on the morning train, not being willing to miss the public debate at 2 p. m. At this hour there assembled in the chapela very large audience to witness the contest on the question, "Does an increase of prosperity cause a cor-responding increase in morality?"

The affirmative was well sustained by Messrs. C. S. Farriss and L. F. Carroll, the negative by Messrs, W. H. Roge-dale and N R. Pittman. The affirmative showed very clearly the advancement the world had made in material prosperity and morality, and claimed that the latter was caused by the former in some of its different phases. They showed that the world is now more prosperous than in the days of the Pagan world, and that idols and shrines had been abolished and the religion of Christ set up instead.

The negative denied that we are any more prosperous than our ancestors—illustrating it by the high tide of luxury and wealth in Greece and Rome, and still their debauchery and crime. Alexander and Napoleon, though cradled in the lap of luxury and success.

failed to be any more moral than their poorest soldiers.

They claimed since property has no persuasive force or competing force that it cannot cause a corresponding increase in morality.

The speeches elicited a great deal of hard study and careful preparation, and was an excellent debate. The question was decided in the negative by a majority of 95. The audience dispersed to await the night exercises. At about 5 p. m., the special train from Raleigh arrived, and with it many pretty ladies. Ah! how our hearts leap for joy as we see them thronging our village. We wish we had a table and house large enough to entertain them till next June with all that their desires might call for. They are a dear good people to cheer up a lot of students with their joyful looks and at such a glorious time. We want them at such a glorious time. We want them to come again and will insure them a still better time. But now we hear the bell calling us to hear the representatives of the two Societies. The Chapel is filled, more than filled-'tis packed in every corner, and on the rostrum so that the speakers can hardly enter.

Mr. Ed. M. Potest introduces as the orator of the "En" Society Mr. J. N. Holding, subject: "Existence, not living." This gentleman has a very pleasant style and delivers his addresses in ant style and delivers his address a most affecting manner. He demon-strates the fact that news floating upon the surface, borne by wind and tide gives no man an existence. His appeal for high aims and noble purposes was eloquent and earnest. Well may his

He divides his subject as follows, making his point that "no man lives without the exercise of his mind."

2. He lives longest who thinks most and applies his faculties and powers to their proper use.
3. Noble action forms the single avenue to usefulness and immortality.
He also made under each of these three subdivisions, and supported his

The Possession of Herat. In spite of Lord Beaconsfield's assertions to the contrary, it is probable that the British government has released Persia from the treaty of 1855, by which the Shah relinquished all claim to Herat. For the past decade the possession of Hereat has been looked upon both by England and Russia as all-important. The city may well be called the gate of Indiana, and four great commercial highways meet at it. Its fortress is naturally strong and could be rendered almost impregnable by the addition of modern artillery. Anxious as the Shah is to regain possession of it, he is at present in a dilemma. Russia is urging him to seize it in spite of his treaty, but England's well-known power, a knowledge of which he has gained by past experience, causes him to hesitate, and the developments arising from the situation are no doubt being eagerly watched by statesmen in

NO LONGER ANY BOURT ABOUT 189 HIS CANDIDACY. 19 1404

Then Travel Came and Took Him

Where He Wished"--- Don Cameron and Jimmie Blaine. or. Philadelphia Times. WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 .- The Presidential question received new impor-tant and unexpected material or dis-cussion in the double leader an sunce-ment in the New York Times, from a close personal and political friend of Grants, that he was a candi-late. There is, then, it appears, to be no more masquerading on the part of the rest soldier. He throws off his disguise and steps to the footlights and asks the people what they are going to do about it. After three years of proesting that he would ne'er consent, he onsents. How well I remember the joy General Grant felt after he left th White house at being relieved of the burden of public office. He never, never, never would desert private life. All his close friends whistled the same strain. Under no circumstances would he cousent to become a candidate again.

Then travel came and took him where he wished." From a determination not to become a candidate he became ominously silent. Then followed declarations that he would not take a clarations that he would not take a Presidential nomination unless it came spontaneously and unanimously. Following quick came the act of one of his nearest political and personal friends, who, by all the tricks of the politician, carried the Harrisburg Convention against the wishes of the people of the State. There did not seem to be the necessary amount of "spontaneousness" and unanimousness" among the people, and now we have the carefully people, and now we have the carefully prepared announcement from bis ex-Attorney General, Mr. Pierrepont, that "should the National Republican Convention nominate him in the same manner as any other candidate would te nominated, he would deem it his duty to the country and the party to accept." If that is not an invitation to the boys to pull off their coats and go to work with the old machinery, then I cannot understand what it does mean. With all the protestations of Grant and his friends that he could not become a contestant for the Presidency, the course he is now persuing is unworthy of him, and takes from him all the great dignity which he has acquired by his record as a soldier, the distinction of having been twice President of the United States and the best known of hving Americans. Still his present course is outspoken and unmistakable.

The other candidates will now know what to expect, and may govern them-selves accordingly. CAMERON AGAINST BLAINE. Many of the friends of Senator Blaine have changed their minds about Don Cameron and General Grant. They have believed all along that Cameron was honestly a Blaine man, and that Grant could be nominated without a struggle, he would go to work earnestly for Braine. DonCameron has encouraged this belief from the first with all the adroitness of his nature. That he has done mealculable and irreparable injury, there can be no doubt. I don't know how Blaine feels himself, but his friends here are pretty well satisfied that the wily young Senator has been playing with Blaine and his friends, and that he intends to throw them viciously at Chicago. as he did at Cincinnati in 1876. Therefore, it is that some of Blaine's friends are urging him to nake no appeals for buttered buns, or second favors, but to give the word to his friends in Pennsylvania and other States and let him go to work and take the chances against the openly declared candidature of both Sherman and Grant. Blaine has certainly acted with great dignity and forbearance so far, but if his friends have their way he will throw his res rve to the dogs and see what can be done by open war are. It is certainly no worse to be beaten in an open fight than to be beaten by secret enemies who profess friendships Besides if Blaine gives the word hill friends will have more zeal and wirwork with more energy and encouagement. If this is done Senator Cam. eron will find the Pennsylvania vote at the Chicago Convention too hot for him to handle.

Of all the silly things—and there phave been quite enough of them in connection with the Presidential skirm—a sphing. It think there is nothing so a hear ishing-I think there is nothing so absolutely idiotic as the suggestion that Blaine would be willing to go on the ticket with Grant. The idea that Blaine should be a candidate for Vice-President on the Grant ticket is the Considert thing. I ever heard. This funniest thing I ever heard. This story was started by the Grant men in order to win foolish Blaine men. The order to win footish Blaine men. The cry has been "let Blaine be Vice-President now and President in 1884. He is young and he can wait. We will all go for him in 1884." Blaine would not take the second place on the ticket with any man living, and all the Grant leaders know it. It would be a most foolish thing to do, for a Vice-President is the least part of the government. He has no duties worth speaking of and no power. He is expected to sit and preside over the Senate and look as wisse as an owl—and that is the end of his duties. Blaine is in the Senate for life, ties. Blaine is in the Senate for life, and it is better to be a Senator even two years than Vice-President. The only point to the Vice-Presidency is in hoping that the President may die. Why don't Grant's friends suggest that Blaine become his private secretary! It is a better and more influential position than the other. This is surely enough of politics even if the presidency is the uppermost topic here. [Verve

WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 18, 1880 GEO. C. JOBDAN, Editor and Prop'r

WITH two such ports as Wilmington and Beaufort, the perfect feasibility o re-openining the Inlet at Nag's Head and by enlarging and deepening the Harlow creek canal, giving New Berne and Washington access to the sea with 15 to 18 feet of water, and through Nag's Head, Plymouth and Edenton a still greater depth, scarcely anything can stand in the way of the progresand prosperity of North Carolina commerce. For water facilities there is no such a country on the globe as on State. We have a greater extent coast than any two Atlantic States more than 1,200 miles of inland navi gation; about half the territory of the State is penetrated by rivers navigable for steamboats, and not a county of the interior but possesses vast and almost limitless water-powers for manufacturing purposes; every town a nip has itlocal streams for irrigation and drainage; the productions of our soil are rich, vast and varied; our mineral wealth is unbounded; our timber growth abundant and of the greatest variety of any State of the Union; our climate unexceptional for all purposes and avocations; our people frugal in their habits, orderly and well disposed as a population and conservative in sentiment as a body politic; as individuals quick to assert their own and as ready to respect the rights of others. If a State so situated, so circumstanced and so highly favored of God can fail to grow great in commerce, manufacturing and agriculture, it is a crime in nature to give to man the best natural advantages or to favor him with the finest facilities.

The National government is systematically engaged in improving most of the Southern harbors, to which we alluded a day or two since in connection with Southern commerce, and daily enlarging the facilities for the development of that ocean trade the prospective rapid growth of which we predicted. The depth of water at Wilmington was increased three feet during last year, and in all probability will show a gain of six this, so that in a short time from 25 to 30 feet of water will be carried up to the docks of that city, as was formerly done within the recollection of men not many years deceased. At Beaufort 22 feet may be had at full tide, and not a dollar has been expended for harbor improvements. With a slight expenditure of money 25 to 30 feet ought to obtain here, making it by all odds the best port on the Atlantic coast. Here vessels leave the railroad wharf from Morehead city and are at sea in twenty to thirty minutes; a stranger may enter the port from the sea without a pilot; wind from any quarter brings him to good anchorage, and the harbor is com pletely landlocked, while snow and ice are almost unknown.

WESTERN RAILWAY MOVE MENIS AND CONBINATIONS

A special from Louisville says that a combination has been formed between the Nashville and Georgia Central Rail roads to last for five years. This wil give the Louisville and Nashville Com pany the control of every port on the South Atlantic coast except Bunswick. Georgia. At Savanah the railroad will connect with lines of steamers to New York and Liverpool, and it is intended to compete with the Northern trunk lines in carrying freights from Westers cities to New York. Through bills of lading will be issued to all points Several thousand men are at work in the Louisville and Nashville Com pany's shops on rolling stock, and Mr Wadleigh, of the Georgia Central, is now in New York purchasing steam ships for this line.

So the Western Railway negotiations and threatened combinations are at last assuming definite shape, and our predictions as to the development of the South Atlantic ports are thus early beginning to be fulfilled. Not only is the produce of the North-Western and Western States for trans-Atlantic destinations to seek an outlet turough Southern ports direct, but grain loaded in New York for Europe is also to be taken to the great metropolis over the railroads running into the Southern ports and thence by steamers to New York.

From the statement above, it will be noted that the Louisville and Nashville Railroad and Steamship Company controls every port on the South Atlantic coast, except Brunswick, Georgia. This exception is made in favor of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad, which has its lines and connec tions from Norfolk to Memphis, through Lynchburg, Bristol, Knoxville and Chattanooga, and a possible outlet open to it on the Georgia coast from Chattanoogs to Brunswick, through Rome, Carrollton and Macon.

What is meant by the Louisville and Nashville Company, in conjunction with the Georgia Central, controlling every South Atlantic port, save Brunswick, is, that there is no Southern port on the South Atlantic having western connections with the cities of the North west, except over the Louisville and Nashville, or roads in alliance with it, and that combination makes Savannah its objective port, while virtually closing to western trade all others on the South Atlantic coast. As to Brunswick and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgis railroad, the latter must await the filling of a gap of some fifty miles between Rome and Carrollton, and obtain control, or form an alliance with the Macon and Brunswick read before it can get out through to the port of Brunswick.

While this movement of the Louisville and Nashville railroad looks to the development of Southern commerce to which we pointed las week, and begins the re-toration to savannah of ti at prestige she early took in sending to Liverpool the first steamship, the Savannah, that ever crossed the Atlantic it does not, at first blush, present a very encouraging outlook for the por along the coasts of North and South Carolina, Beaufort, Wilmington, Charleston, and Port Royal, which are still cut off from the cities and tradecentres of the West and Northwest, yet ore, for their Western connections ble prices, at Branson's bookstore.

were never more than barely possible over the Louisville and Nashville, and they can still look to the connections upon which they were mainly dependent before. The same influence, or rather that which pract cally established the Louisville and Nashville lines, defeated the building of the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston Railroad more than forty years ago, and it throws itself across the path of the Cincinnati South ern Railroad, and the Cumberland Gaj connections of South and North Caro ina ports, now. But this situation will not long re nain. The city of Cincinnati did not herself, build a road from her Ohio river evees to Chattanooga for nothing. She sought a direct connection of her own with the South Atlantic ports, and having expended twenty millions for that purp se, she will not now stop short of the end, which is to her, indispensable. Having made the mistake of going to Chattanoega in the first place, she must now retrace her steps and come to Knoxville, as she should have done at the beginning. This she can do by the expenditure of a comparatively small sum of money, and once to Knoxville, the really great railroad cen tre of the near future, in the South West, the gap will be closed between Wolf Creek or Paint Rock and Asheville and Hendersonville, and then i will be practically the old Cumberland Gap route at last opened from Charles-great North West. These are the signs of the times as we read them, and they foreshadow that supremacy of Southern commerce of which we have before spoken, and sharing in which North Carolina has such a bright future before her.

forrible Death-A Boy Gone and Five Men Barely Escape a Horrible

The compositors employed on this paper were peacefully "sticking their type" yesterday, and save the occasional cracking of a joke by the funny ones, and the unceasing grumbling of the "devil" as he went about his tasks, all was quiet and serene.

But while these innocent ones were thus employed, they little thought how close to a horrible death their experience was to soon carry them.

A fiend in human shape was seen lu-king near the door. In human form? Yes we suppose that is what you would call it. He was tall, gaunt, long. lank and lean. His legs were small, but they were long. They looked as though his body had suddenly fell in a reed thicket and had gotten there by accitent. His feet were fac simile's of two Mississippi River steamboats. His hair was red-how red! and on his coun-

We knew he meant trouble as soon as he entered the room. Without a soore of spotographic stalked up to the reporter's desk and turned loose a volley of interrogatories into our activation in the stalked to the stalked t coustic organs. We tried to run, but he caught us and, commanding that we say not a word, reseated us. For two hours and a half he kept up a continual clatter, not even pausing to take breath. This reporter has withstood the "chin music" of numberless bores in his day, but this one made us cave. We fainted dead away at the expiration of the fifth half hour, nor awoke in three hours afterwards. The fiend was still in the room, but he had left us and sought new victims. It seems that after we lost consciousness he made stretched beside their cases, apparently dead. The fiend has got the "devil" (the only live person, apparently, left in the room) cornered, and a "shooting stick" is being wildly flourished about his head. Now we claim that our devil is the toughest one known to the fraternity, but he's gone, poor fellow. Notwithstanding his tough qualities he ould not stand this, and with his dying gasp he beseeched us to write upo is headstone: "TALKED TO DEATH!

At the time we close this article the pressman enters to strike off the "first side" of the paper. Quicker than thought the fiend seizes him and notwithstanding the elatter of the press machinery, his clarion voice can be heard above all this racket, and the chances are that he too will succumb before morning. Of all the horrible of our devil that there is none so terrible as to be " talked to death." Every lawyer who has used Tourgee' "Digest of Cited Cases," or "Code, with Notes and Decisions," well knows how useful these books are in the North Carolina practice. And those lawyers who do not have them should re them at once. Messrs. Alfred Williams & Co., Raleigh, are the pub-

This useful invention meets a long felt need for a more convenient method of removing dysters, Potatoes, and other fried fool, with greater quickness, and all at once, from the boiling fat in which they have been cooked, and allowing the fat to drain from them while they remain over the fire; thereby getting rid more certainly of the superfluous grease, the objection so often made of the unhealthiness of food cooked in the ordinary frying-pan is done away with.
